PROGRAMS IN THE ARTS

General Class/Workshop Description: Participants will learn a fusible web appliqué technique for making contemporary narrative quilts. The quilt process will begin with a theme or idea. Color, pattern, and shape will be emphasized in creating images. Programs of varying lengths are offered for quilters of all levels and for teachers who are interested in incorporating quilting or art skills into their classes. All classes and workshops will be held at the Cincinnati Recreation Commission's Kennedy-Woodford Center, 6065 Red Bank Road, Kennedy Heights. Students must provide supplies for four-week classes. A supplies list will be provided prior to class participation.

About the artist: Kate Sturman Gorman's background is in illustration and literature. She tells stories visually using the medium of the contemporary quilt. Her recent quilts are collaged portraits that explore connections between contemporary figures and characters from mythology. Ms. Gorman's work has been exhibited regionally and nationally. When working with students, Ms. Gorman likes to learn their stories and help them find visually effective ways to tell those stories.
